

Player Profile – Karen Douek

I discovered bridge just this year and am absolutely passionate about the game. My parents played, back in the 1960s, but it was strictly for adults. When they hosted games at home we kids would watch from the stairs, through a haze of cigarette smoke, and after the guests had left we would stuff ourselves with leftover pastries from the snack table, like sambusek (with savory cheese), kunafa (with sweet almond), and other dishes from our family's Sephardic Jewish traditions.

My parents grew up in Egypt and immigrated to Montreal in 1957, where I was born two years later. Both spoke French before they arrived, and that is my first language, too. From an early age I dreamed of becoming a doctor. I started out studying pharmacy and worked briefly in that field in a local hospital. At the age of 24 I enrolled in medical school, at the University of Toronto. I did a residency in internal medicine in that city, and in 1990 I landed a fellowship in nephrology (study of the kidneys) at OHSU. That is what initially brought me to Portland, where I met my husband, Elliot. Like me, he has an international background: his parents are originally from Iraq and Egypt, he was born in India, and he spent much of his childhood in Japan. Unlike me, he worked in business (is now retired), rather than medicine.

I am so devoted to my career as a nephrologist that for the longest time I planned on working until age 70. But when Elliot retired, I got to thinking. I love my work, developing relationships with people who struggle with long-term chronic illness and doing what I can to make their lives better. But I do not love the never-ending paperwork and red tape that take me away from my patients.

So I decided to move my retirement up a bit. But what would I do instead? I needed something with an intellectual challenge and some social engagement, too. Biking to work one day this past January, I thought of bridge, the game my parents loved, and wondered if it might be for me.

That very evening I downloaded and began devouring online courses from Audrey Grant and Pat Harrington. A couple of months later Elliot found out about the classes from Linda and Dave at the Portland Bridge Club (PBC). We signed up. He liked it, I more than liked it. Today, we both take lessons and join supervised play several times weekly at the PBC, and I also take Saturday lessons with Flo Savage at the Ace.

In addition, Elliot and I play Bridge Base Online (BBO). Every Sunday afternoon, we join my mother, who still lives in Montreal (my father is deceased). She partners with me, Elliot partners with a BBO robot, and, through speakerphone she gives us running commentary on bidding and play. Very helpful!

These days, I fit my bridge games into a week that also includes 65+ hours at my job, as well as biking, running (with Ziggy, our year-old Goldendoodle), yoga, and as much reading as I can. Elliot and I are also raising three children, one now off to college, two still in high school. To squeeze it all in, I typically rise well before the sun. When I do retire, I will find time for more sleep, and more biking, but not so much that it gets in the way of my bridge.

SCHEDULE

OBTY publishes on the 1st of February, April, June, August, October, and December. Submissions for a given month's issue are due by the 20th of the previous month.

FROM YOUR UNIT BOARD

The Unit 487 board of directors continues its search for a new venue for our sectionals. For the past 12 years, 32 out of 35 Unit 487 sectional tournaments have been held in armory locations. Unfortunately, our old standby, Kliever Armory, needs a new roof and many other updates, and Camp Withycombe is costlier than we would like. If you have any ideas on a suitable venue that is accessible to players in our area, please let us know. We must make a decision SOON!

Once again we will offer bridge classes during the school day for middle-school students at Catlin Gabel. The fall session begins Tuesday, Sep. 6, 12:00-1:00 p.m., and continues on variable weekdays through December. If you can help with even one of these classes, let Ginny Kopacz (gkopacz@msn.com) know; we would very much appreciate it. We also are talking now with people at the MAC about offering an after-school class for kids there, starting in January.

You heard it here first: The bridge touring company Finesse West is planning two visits to the Pacific Northwest next year. Their plans call for them to be in Portland in September and in October of 2017. Watch for further details—including dates and places and how to arrange a game with them—in future OBTYs.

Our next meeting will take place Thursday, August 4, 4:00 p.m., at the Ace of Clubs. Everyone is invited, and we welcome your questions and ideas.

MEMBER NEWS

Amar Chopra has treated fellow players to a number of tasty Indian dishes at various potluck events, but he earned extra raves for the mango mousse he brought to the Ace of Clubs July 4th game. So many people requested the recipe that Amar agreed to share it here (even while insisting it be noted that the recipe is not originally his):

2 packets peach jello
2 cups warm water
1 can mango pulp (available at any Indian grocery)
2¼ cups heavy whipping cream

Stir the jello into the warm water until fully mixed. Add the mango pulp and continue stirring for about a minute. Add the cream and whip the mixture until fully aerated. Refrigerate for at least three hours. Serve and enjoy.

The I/N Crowd: ADDING CONVENTIONS by Dick Morris

From 2002 to 2004, when this newsletter was under the editorship of Jean Johannsen, Dick Morris wrote a popular column for intermediate and newer ("I/N") players known as The I/N Crowd. The advice he offered then is equally relevant today, so from time to time OBTY reprints those columns in their near-to-original form. This one originally appeared in the October/November 2003 issue of OBTY.

As a newer player, you probably started your duplicate bridge life with a fairly naked convention card. After taking a few classes, you may have added some of the more basic conventions. You'll want to add more as you gain experience and progress toward becoming an intermediate player.

My first words of advice are GO SLOW. Do not add too many conventions at one time. Remember that adding a convention is more than just checking a box on the convention card. It also means understanding the second- and third-round bids that are needed to fully implement the new convention.

In addition, consider what bids or conventions you're giving up when you add a new convention. Very few conventions can be added without a tradeoff. For the most obvious example, a strong two-club bid prevents a weak two-club bid. If you want to open with a preemptive club bid it has to be done at the three-level or higher.

My second bit of advice is to obtain a good book that will help you add conventions to your game. A favorite of mine is Barbara Seagram's "25 Bridge Conventions You Should Know." It was recommended by friends who had used it to become good intermediate players. It's well written, easy to understand, and comes highly recommended by Eddie Kantar, an excellent instructional author in his own right.

Third, I recommend writing down in a notebook as much as you can about any conventions you add, especially describing second- and third-round bids that would follow. The main reason for doing this is that when you and your regular partner have a disagreement about a bidding sequence (and we've all been there), a notebook with your common understanding will help adjudicate the discussion. And if you play with different partners, you can refer to the notebook as you describe how you play different conventions.

Finally, don't get discouraged when you mess up the first or second time you try to use a new convention. We've all left partner (or been left) in an artificial bid with disastrous results. I personally believe that how well we remember a new convention is directly proportional to how badly we botched it the first time we tried using it. Just be patient. Adding conventions takes time, but it is an essential step to becoming an intermediate duplicate bridge player.
